NEW YORK, NY—The debut legal thriller by Larry Fine entitled Murdering Lawyers (Grey Swan Press, July 2014) can aptly be described as Rosemary's Baby meets The Firm. Larry Fine, a member of the NY bar, explores his love-hate relationship with his profession by writing a novel that literally follows the advice of one of Shakespeare's characters in Henry VI, Part II, who said: "The first thing we do, let's kill all the lawyers."

New York City is run by an ancient secret society. Members of this elite organization have two things in common; one of them is the law and the other is even more diabolical.

Marc Wilson is a jobless young attorney, once idealistic but now willing to bend a few rules to help his career. He regards himself as a half-Jewish atheist who is not averse to embracing new beliefs in order to advance a career based on deception. Unbelievably, he becomes a globe-trotting litigator at a prestigious international law firm, finds himself living in a luxury apartment, and enters into a romantic relationship with the boss' daughter—but not without paying a heavy price. What appears to the world as a laudable system of beliefs is, in reality, the opposite to members of an inner circle of egomaniacal schemers.

Marc is caught up in a deadly conspiracy from which there may be no escape. As he uncovers the mystical secrets which bind New York City's powerful to each other, he becomes a pawn in a deadly struggle with far-reaching toxic consequences.

As his journey takes him from Queens to Manhattan to Nuremberg, Germany, Marc is forced to face who he really is and what he is capable of doing. Murdering Lawyers is a riveting ride that will have you holding your breath until the very last page.

MURDERING LAWYERS™, the arcade style, 2D shooter, mobile game app inspired by the novel, is in development by Stratdgi Corp. In the game, players will attempt to murder their way through the corruption in the legal system and try to destroy it at its source. The MURDERING LAWYERS™ game app will be available in August 2014 from the Apple App Store and shortly thereafter from Google Play.
